we were by no means disposed to consider the most re cent an exception. As every one new knows, it has not proved one. The revulsion was, no doubt, hastened everal circumstances which transpired in Wall street; but under the most favorable auspices, it could not have been put off much longer. The decline was y equal to the appreciation of the previous six months. The rise in prices was divided among a large class of operators, while the fall fell upon a few. This s usually the result of a panic. Speculators know all well the result of these movements but they never learn by experience.

Prices are now just a bout where they were six nonths since, and a movement that would cover onehalf of the margin existing at that time, would not inflate prices for some of the leading railroad stocks beyond their actual value, or create an artifical state of things in the market to an extent endangering the market value of dividend paying securities. We have carefully considered the present state of financial affairs. We have, like the skilful navigator, run before the gale when it would be use-less to contend with it in keeping our original course. We have advised all exposed to prepare for the coming storm, by making every thing snug in time. Those who listened to our note of warning, and heeded it, have escaped unscathed, while those who ventured too far from land in their frail backs unkilled in navigating amid the shoals and quicksand of the stock market, and unmindful of the advice so freely given to beware of the dangers that beset them, have been wrecked. Many have disappeared, and have not since been heard of.

Since the elements of speculation have become quiet, and the storm of revulsion somewhat subsided, we have been able to get a clear observation, and have found out our true position. We find wrecks floating about in every direction; some have partially repaired writers are principally bear speculators, who put up with their losses with their usual equanimity. Such things have happened before, and will happen again; but that is no reason why we should not again venture upon the sea of speculation, but it should teach us caution and circumspaction, and keep us within proper limits. After a storm comes a calm, is an old out true remark. We have had the storm and the calm, and a gentle breeze is about springing up, which will waft those who provide themselves with sufficien ballast a good pilot, and trim their sails skilfully rapidly into the port of prosperity.

The news from Europe, by the Africa, is fourteen days ater than that received by the previous steamer. It loss not amount to much, either in a financial or commercial point of view. Cetton remained the same as previously quoted. This is, no doubt, considered faprable, as a decline in prices was anticipated. The corn markets were steady. Provisions were inactive, without change in prices. The money market pos sessed no new feature. Consols were firm at quota tions, and the Bank of England had made no further alteration in the rate of interest. On the continent, everything continued quiet. Political affairs generaly, were less portentious than appeared by previous advices, and indications were more numerous of per-manency in the position of the different governments, and the preservation of peace in the political relations of the world at large.

The announcement that a bank with a capital of two millions of dollars, to be called the "Bank of the Metropolis," was about starting, for the purpose of compelling the country banks to redeem their circu lation in this city, has created considerable excitement in financial circles, and caused a great deal of specula-tion in the public mind relative to the feasibility of the proposed plan, and the effect, in the event of the system being fully established. The Suffolk Bank system of Boson is referred to by the friends of this new institution *can illustration of the advantages of par redemption to the community at large, and profit to the bank deroting its capital to such a purpose. It must be admitted that par redemption would much benefit the merchants of this city, those doing s large country business, and receiving a large amount of what is now called uncurrent money. They would save a large sum annually, which is now paid to the brokers of Wall street, for discount on country bank bills. On this account it is highly important to that class, that a system of par redemption should be perfected, and if possible, sustained. We are not aware that any other class would be benefited in the least by par redemption, and it will probably be opposed by the shole banking capital of the interior. In the first place, we doubt the feasibility of the plan, no matter how beneficial it might prove. We do not believe that a bank, with a capital of twenty, instead of two millions, could accomplish the object the projectors of the 'Bank of the Metropolis' have in view. The geographical position of this city, alone, is sufficient to de-feat any such intention, and such will be the result of sustain a system of par redemptions, where it extends no further than the New England States, and even with all its advantages in that particular, it was with the greatest difficulty that the Suffolk Bank succeeded in bringing the banks of those States into the arrangement. We venture the assertion, that there is not in the but that would break loose from the compact to mor row, if it were not for the power wielded by the Suffolk Bank, and the dispesition exhibited, and efforts made, by that institution, to crush every bank not submitting to the terms laid down, and so rigidly enforced The monopoly is galling to every country bank n that section of the Union; still self-interest induces them to continue the connection. New England is a very small section compared with the area, the re-demption bank of this city would be compelled to cover with its system. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, Ohio, the New England States - in fact, it must embrace the whole Union in its system of par redemption. What Boston s to New England, New York is to the Union-the centre of financial operations, and the regulator of movements in the currency. It is therefore plain, that no system of par redemption, emanating from the city of New York, can succeed, without embracing the whole Union; and to establish such a system, it would take more than the entire existing banking capital of this city. We are not opposed to par redemption where it adds to the security and convenience of the bill holder, and where it would be sufficiently exended to prevent the circulation of a depreciated paper currency, and place all bank issues upon e same level; but we are opposed to any sytem that would flood us with a paper currency not secured by stock deposits, but of the most depreciated character. In the event of the "Bank of the Metro" polls" succeeding in establishing a system of par redemption for the State of New York, we should be fairly overrun with issues of banks located in New England, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, &c., &c., and the discount would be sufficiently large to attract these who have large weekly payments to make to mechanics and others. In this way the circulation of our State banks would be reduced, and it would result in the liquidation of a large number of our free banks; in the creation of banks in our neighboring States, and, in fact, in a complete derangement of the existing stock security banking system of this State. Upon such reresentations as have been made relative to the object of starting this "Bank of the Metrepolis," it is probable that the capital stock of $2,000,000 will be taken by those who expect to derive a great benefit from the proposed par redemption system. The jobbers generally will doubt less subscribe, believing that they will

The report of Mesers. Wright and Buckdale, the commissioners appointed by the last Legislature to investigate the affairs of the Bank of Susquehanna County, has been submitted to the Legislature, and shows most conclusively the swindling character of that corrupt concern, it never having had, from its earliest organization in 1837, any such amount of capital paid in as would warrant the commencement of business. Its capital was altogether fictitious The suspension in 1843, was a necessary consequence; and after its resuscitation in 1845, it seems to have had but about $4 000 in cash as the basis of its operations; yet upon this it managed to force its notes into circulation to the extent of $205,000. No bail was ever given by T. P. St. John or C. P. Delamater, while they acted as eachiers; and the extensive loans negotiated in 1846, 1847, and 1849, known as the Mann loan. (for $184,000 in 1846, and $100 010 in '47.) the St. John loan. (for $20,000.) and the Thompson loan. (for $90,000.) were done entirely without security and n s great measure without the cognizance of the n a great measure without the cognizance of the directors. The assets of the bank when it exploded, were valued at $39,214 28 as follows:—Specie, $42 55; bank notes, good, $5; good debts, $21,000; doubtful burns, Conver at Co., 61 Camputget, New Orleans.

in February last, it was discovered that the accounts at Springfield had been very much neglected; that the books had not been properly kept; and fears were entertained that a large deficiency would be found to exist in the funds of the company. It will be seen that several items have been charged to the contingent fund, for deficiencies ascertained upon settling and balancing the books at Springfield. A deficiency of funds was found to exist at the Albany station, arising principally from neglecting to call for prompt settle ments in former years. These things are now rectified a system of prompt accountability from the agents of the various stations is enforced, and the good effect are felt by the treasurer in the financial affairs of the to state, by the advice of his friends and customers, that he has leased the large store and basement of No. 439 Broome street, corner of Crosby, and has fitted it up in a good and substantial manner, for the sole purpose of conducting his legitimate business, namely, wines, brandies, liquors, segars, ales, &c., wholessie and retail. At the same time—to state his perfect knowledge of the business needs no comment, as it has been thoroughly tested—he still repeats his assertion that he can sell twenty to twenty, five per cent cheaper than any other house in New York. Good judgment. He insists that his stock is the largest and best selected in the world for the same business. He will open his store on Friday morning, and earnestly solicite a call from his friends and the public.

Liquid Hair Byr-Alexanders Tricobaphe — This celebrated fiair Due has been in use about five years, and has never, yet failed of complete curcess in imparting to the hair, whickers &c., a natural brown or black, so exactly resembling the natural color of the hair as to defy detection. E. Burr Stone Grinders—Patented November, 1847.—
These milis are warranted to do more work than any other milis now in use, and do not require one half as much power. The first premium was awarded to the patenties of these Mills, at the Fairs of the American Institute in 1849, and 8700. Also, at the Fair of the Manachusetts Charitable Mechanical Association, in 1850. These Mills are very convenient for transportation, their whole weight being much less than the clones alone of common mills. They are admirably adapted for grinding grain of all kinds—cooffee, spices, mustard, starch, salt, paints, plumbage, manganese, bones, fint, quart, plaster, charceal, drugs, dys stuffs, snuff, flax seed, cilcake, &c., &c.
